To create a Works Cited citation, list each of the source’s core elements in the order listed below, using the form of punctuation that appears after each element.

If an element is not identified in the source (such as author or version), simply skip that element and go to the next.
